

Valkyrie's Lullaby

Lasair inghen ui h'Airt

The bat - tle is done One of the two ar - mies has won
Do not try to run from me The light of your soul I can see

The crows take flight at day's last light And yet, they still try to run
The torch of your deeds, your honor and greed, De - ter - mine the fate you re - ceive

En - ter my arms to car - ry you home A - way from your harm you will be one of O - din's own

The battle is done
One of the two armies has won
The crows take flight at day's last light
And yet, they still try to run

Do not try to run from me
The light of your soul I can see
The torch of your deeds, your honor and greed,
Determine the fate you receive

*Enter my arms to carry you home
Away from your harm you will be one of Odin's own*

You stand in the ring of your foes
All fallen from your axe blows
Your sword drank their blood that rained in a flood
Your honor and fame quickly grow

Shield maid defending your land
Your life was victory's demand
Your shield split in twain, blood waters your grain
Your death brings you to Freyja's hand

Chorus

Frightened jarl hates the spear-din
You lost the battle within
When you fought your fate, surrendered your gate
your weak battle-dew shamed your kin

Hidden under your dead friends
Today is not your journey's end
Remember your war, your brush with death's door
Keep honor till we meet again

Chorus

My sisters and I heed the call
To choose after last fighter falls
For Freyja's green fields or Eihenjar shields
Or sent to Hel's darkness to crawl

Open your ears to my cry
And for the last time, close your eyes Reaver's work is done; the last mercy comes
I sing valkyrie's lullaby!